IN NEW YORK AND OHIO, The President Elect Winhes to Hear the Views and Claims of the Party Captains

-Gen. Longstreet Visits Him and Says the South Wants Everything She Can Get INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 3.—An explanation is given here to-day of the lively cancussing that has been going on in New York and Ohio be-tween the Republican leaders during the past ten days. Such an unwonted fondness for conferences at so early a stage of a political game as the present is unusual, and not likely to be manifested except under the sour of a necessity forced upon the conferrees. The necessity arises, it appears, from letters the Fresident elect has been writing. These letters have been addressed to Rapublican leaders in the conferrees. elect has been writing. These letters have been addressed to Republican leaders in these two States, and probably to leaders in other States also, and they set forth the anxiety of the President elect to act with perfect fairness to all factions in order to harmonize the party the President elect to act with perfect fairness to all factions in order to harmonize the party as much as possible at the very beginning of bis Administration. They request each person addressed to write to the President elect a careful statement of his views as to the situation is his State, and in effect are an invitation for the leaders of the several factions to appear before the bar of the Harrison court and present briefs setting forth the arguments in favor of their several sides of the case.

The conferences consequent upon these letters arise out of the anxiety of each faction to tall the best possible story, and especially to have all the stories of its side of the case agree. It would be inconvenient if Tom Platt should make one set of allegations in reply to his letter, while Chauncey M. Depew should tell an entirely different tale in his answer to the President elect, with perhaps a third state of the case being set out by Frank Hiscock in his letter. So they have come together to agree upon one tale to tell, and Dr. Miller, flocking by himself off in his corner of the State, is holding a conference with himself and fixing by his little story to tell the President elect. The same thing is being done by the Ohio leaders, and when the conferring is ail over and the representatives of the several factions to the president elect. The same thing is being done by the Ohio leaders, and when the conferring is ail over and the representatives of the several factions to the president elect. The same thing is being done by the Ohio leaders, and when the conferring is ail over and the representatives of the several factions to the parties. They are therefore, and bout forty of them as great leads and woods, some of the rest, conducting their baryains, buying their surplies, and keeping account of their samples, and keeping account of their samples, buying their surplies, and keeping account of their samples, buying their surplies, and keeping account of their samples, buying their surplies, and keeping accou bolding a conference with himself and fixing up his little story to tell the President elect. The same thing is being done by the Ohio leaders, and when the conferring is all over and the representatives of the saveral factions send on their carefully arranged stories the tales on each side will agree as well as those of a band of schoolboys who have been up to some mischiel.

How well these stories will work in influencing the course of the President elect is a question. Schoolmaster Harrison has some assistants travelling about the country who may be keeping their eyes peeled for bad boys, and their reports may have as much influence over him askine tales the boys tell on each other. But at any rate Harrison does not mean to leave any chance for the allegation that he has ignored any faction or failed to give it an ouportunity to be heard. He will give them all a chance at the preliminaries however severely some of them may be plucked in the final examination.

The day's sensation here has been the report chance at the preliminaries however severely some of them may be plucked in the final examination.

The day's sensation here has been the report that hast Quay stole into town yesterday and out again without being caught at it. The inherently improbable report was preity well exploded by alterneen, but it made a deal of talk among the politicians all the morning. It was followed by a story that James G. Blaine has come to town and was closeted with the President elect. Some believed even that.

"In always glad to have you newspaper men bring mon the news," said Gen. Harrison dryly, this afternoon, when the rumors were mentioned to him. "You have no idea what a lot of things about myself I nover would know if the newspaper men did not tell them to me."

Gen. Harrison has a good deal of fun with the newspaper men, especially with the new ones who come to town and hurry out to interview him the first thing they do.

"There's a new newspaper man in town. I think." he said to-day. "He was cut to see me last night. He started in by saying, Genegal, I have come to ask you it— 'That was as far as he got. I stopped him rather quickly, and I suppose he went away with a grudge against me."

Gen. Hagrison does not tell quite the whole interview. It was something like this:

as he got. I stopped him rather quickly, and I suppose he went away with a grudge against me.

Gen. Hagrison does not tell quite the whole interview. It was something like this:

Beporter—General. I have come to ask you about a despatch in the Cincinnati Commercial Garelle this morning saying that you had—
Gen. Harrison—btop istop right there. Don't you know that I do not permit myself to 'e interviewed?

Gen. Harrison—I know, but I can't answer it. The newsjapers that start these stories about what I am going to do or have done, must back them up themselves, for I will not.

The despatch about which the reporter wanted to ask the General, alleged that the portfolio of the treasury department had already been tendered to Senator Allison. The story was circumstantial, but without foundation. That the treasury portfolio may be offered to Senator Allison is very probable, but no tenders of that sort have yet been made to him or any one else. This is not official, but it is accurate.

The most interesting visitor to tien. Harrison dody has been Gen. Longstreet, who arrived here from Atlanta last night. He was accompanied by E. A. Angier and A. Angier, and the party is visiting E. C. Atkins. This morning they called upon Gen. Harrison and spent a abort time with him. To-night Gen. Harrison dined with the Southerners at the residence of Mr. Atkins. Gen. Longstreet is often spoken of as resembling Grant, and in nothing is the resemblance more marked than in the fondness for silence. But the reporters who were in waiting at the station has night to nab any strny statesman that came in on the late trains got the General rather at a disadvantage, and he spoke with a freedom not common for him got the General rather at a disadvantage, and he cooke with a freedom not common for him in his wholly self-restrained moments. This is the way the interview is reported in the morning papers here:

"Gen. Longstreet said he came here especially to see Gen. Harrison, not merely to pay his compliments, but on business."

Is it talk on the Southern policy of the next Administration?

"No: I came to see Ten."

Is it talk on the Southern policy of the next Administration?

"No; I came to see what we could get."

"What does the South want, General?"

"All we can get."

Gen. Longstreet was under different influences to-day. When asked for his views on the Southern queetion, he said: "Now, young man, please don!. There is not the least bit of political significance in our viel. I just thought I would come up. My friends were going to New York, so they came this way with me. We intend to call and see Mr. Harrison, the President elect, and offer our congratulations, that's ail."

"But as a resident of the Bouth, and one familiar with its sentiments and its people, can't you give some idea of what the South wants from the new Administration."

"I can tell you this much, laughed the General. "the Bouth wants everything. It wants the earth if it can get it, but it wants more than anything else a good, honest, and friendly sair; manifested to it. We want to be treated kindly and considerately."

The Federal Grand Jury meets to-merrow, and will resume its work of hearing witnesses upon the hundred or so complaints for violations the series object of Gen. Longstreet's visit leaked out to-night. He wants to be becretary of the Interior, but is willing to be the Commissioner of Agriculture as a compromise.

OUTLAWS IN STRACUSE. Attack on a Young Physician who was Re-turning from a Charity Visit,

SYRACUSE, Dec. 3.—At about 10 o'clock on Friday evening Dr. Horace D. Babeock, a young physician returning from a charity call in the southern part of the city, met a party of un-known men to whom he said "Good evening." The answerwas a blow, which felled the Doctor and deprived him of consciousness. A little later he was found by a passing traveller, who helped him to a surgeon's office, where his jaw was found to be fractured in a place and in a manner to make the injury permanent, if not fatal. The surgeon said that had the blow struck the Doctor on the head or the neck it would have killed him.

A party of men singing and brawling passed along the read just before the assault, disturb-ing the neighborhood with their outcries. They were supposed to be from the Sand Hill road, an isolated highway about two miles south of the city, where live a colony of quarrymen, limeburners, and brickmakers, who for several years have terrorized the community.

YOUNG ASH B. JOHNSON'S CAREER.

Years, and is Wanted in Two States.

CANANDAIGUA, Dec. 3.—Ash B. Johnson, alias Andrew H. Mackey, a fine-appearing man of 21 years, who was jailed here last June for appropriating Dr. G. H. Watson's bicycle, and who escaped from the jail on Sept. 1, has been captured, and to-day he told the full story of a short but exciting career of felony.

In 1886, while studying law in his father's office at Auburn, he fell in love with Catharine Mattlock, the 16-year-old daughter of a hard-ware merchant, and induced Father Ulrich, a Catholic priest, to marry them, against the wishes of her parents. The marriage got the priest in hot water with his church, and the young couple were separated in a few days by the girl's parents. Johnson days by the girl's parents. Johnson gave up his law studies and left town. He lived by his wits from that time on until last June, when, after securing the surplus change of a number of prominent Little Falls men in a same of poker, he was arrested. He broke jull and twice escaned from the officers, once by appropriating a horse and once by hiding between the pla-stering and clapboards of a house. In Rochester he einsed the police by aid of a stolen bicycle, which he alterward nawned. He next came here and stole a bicycle, but was arrested before he could complete a scheme to raffic the machine off at a ball in Ovid. In Reptember he tricked the turnkey of the jail and scaled a thirty-toot wall. He walked to Seneca Falls, and went from there with a livery seam, which he would have disposed of at Cortland had not the police been too close after him. He boited from there into Pennsylvania, where he is now wanted for jail breaking. After continuing operations in New York and Albany he recently turned up in Syracuse, where he was spotted by detectives. His father, who is an able and esspected lawyer, has disappeared, while awaiting the arrival of the Canan;

while awaiting the arrival of the Canan-daigna officer at Syracuse papers were served on Johnson in an action to annul his marriage with Catharine Mattlock, on the ground that it was procured by threats.

LYNCHING IN NORTH CAROLINA.

A Negro Murderer Taken from Jall by a

Mixed Mob and Hanged. CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 3 .- John Carson. alias Van Canady, a bright mulatto, who on Saturday confessed the murder of James Philbeck and an assault upon his wife, was lynched near Shelby early yesterday morning. The murderer was about 23 years old. Just of about 100 persons gathered near Shelby. composed of whites and blacks, on horseback and on foot. After arranging for a leader the body proceeded to the jail, overpowered the guard, and extinguished the lights. To gain entrance to the murderer's cell it was necessary to break two heavy locks, but this work seemed only play for determined men.

Upon entering the cell of the doomed man one of the lynchers told him his fate, and that resistance would be useless. He then placed a rope around the negro's neck and led him forth. When about one mile east of the juil the lynchers halted, placed the rope over the limb of a big oak, and the leader told the culprit to say his prayers. The negro showed no sign of fear. He said that the sentence of death was a just one. He spoke and prayed for several minutes, and was then pinioned sideways on the horse. In a flash the animal sped on, and the negro was swinging in midair, his body writhing in the ageny of death. Yestorday afternoon the body was cut down and an injuest held. The veidict was: "Died of strangulation at the hands of parties unknown."

The murderer of James Philbeck had been a sneak thlef and robber for at lenst eight years past. On Friday night, Nov. 9, he attempted to wrock a train on the Carolina Central Hallway by placing a log on the iron bridge near Shelby. He confessed to many other crimes while in infil. and accured his brother Charley of plotting Philbeck's murder for the purpose of robbing him of $1,600. EVADING THE LOCAL OPTION LAW. Thirety Men in Bry Counties in Maryland Get their Drinks at the Cluba.

BALTIMORE, Dec. S .- Local option prevails in quite a number of counties in this State, but in very few has the law been strictly enforced. True, no saloons are tolerated, but the drinking members of the community generally manage to get all they want by organizing primanage to get all they want by organizing private clubs. Here the thirsty ones drink ad libitum without fear of detection. The Judges of the eastern shore have determined to break up this business. The Grad Jury of Talbot county, in its report, called the attention of the Court to the club method of violating the liquor law, and Judge Wieks announced that no more incorporation papers will be granted under the general incorporation law of the State to literary musical, and social clubs. The Judge said it was within the knowledge of the three Judges in the circuit that Baltimore liquor dealers were making it a custom to organize clubs in local option districts whereby they could get customers for their goods. He advised the State's Attorney to take such measures to present all clubs not strictly complying with the stipulations of their charters in order that there may be a forfeiture of charter. There are in Talbot county about 200 clubs. In Chariel district, where the sale of liquor is licensed, there are no clubs. In the other prohibition counties of the judicial circuit there are incorporated clubs, where liquors are freely dispensed. They are all suid to have the United States special tax stamp as retail liquor dealers.

Monday, Dec. 3.

The air of Wall street was most decreesing this morning. Even the faw people who entertained hopes of better times were abashed by the majority from expressing them. The disgust and discouragement of the street was so intense that it seemed unwilling to listen to any one who might attempt to point out the possibility of a turn in the tide. In a word, the speculative community, which at present consists almost entirely of the professional element, had lost its passages and resolved to accept the results of its despair. The downward movement that gained fair headway Saturday morning continued with increased momentum. The law of grav-itation seemed for a time to have acquired new force, and no one was in-clined to check its operation. The indications are that a good many small dealers who have been struggling to nold themselves against the tide yielded to the more rapid current this morning and threw over their stocks. Some larger dealers who have lingered upon the long side appeared to have become as radical in their operations upon the short side as the most pronounced bear could desire. In consequence of these conditions and operations the market was fairly demoralized during the first two hours of business.

It is not surprising that the apprehensiveness of the street was increased when it is noted that within the time mentioned Rock Island broke more than 3 % cent, on unusual transactions, and Missouri Pacific also 3 % cent., while the market value of New York and New England dwindled at the same rapid pace, and Atchison droped over four points without the slightest sign of recovery. The trading was on an extensive scale all round, but it should be observed that the heaviest dealings and the greatest declines were, with the sole execution of New England, in the stocks of the two important groups of roads, the Grangers and the Southwesterns, that are being carried toward insolveury by the suicidial policy of their managers. The Trunk line stocks, especially Lake Shore, reliected the progress that has been made toward securing better rates from the truffle between Chicago and St. Louis to the seaboard. Island broke more than 3 7 cent. on unusual
